

Session-based exploratory testing is chartered exploratory testing executed in time-boxes.

A time-box is a period of time reserved for the completion of a testing task. An exploratory testing assignment is considered to be completed when its timebox has expired.