

Configuration management is the division of roles and responsibilities in creating a new build of the software and the definition of a process by which a new build must be authorized.